we intend to write a critique of this work based upon aristotelian scholastic philosophy the philosophy of aristotle and the idealistic philosophy which blanshard proposes are poles apart aristotle is a thorough going realist and a critical realist from aristotelian scholastic principles one can examine the whole problem which idealism raises and show how certain and clear is the answer given by realism further the principles of aristotle are so comprehensive and so founded on evident fact that they enable one to make of a book such as blanshard s not merely a negative but a positive criticism to offer criticism which is not merely destructive but constructive as well with the principles of aristotle one can point out not only the shortcomings and failings of blanshard s conclusion and arguments but also show positively and in a critical manner the truth of the philosophy of realism
